Property Owners Appear Determined to Move Reservation From Broadway.

WANT OFFICIALS OF CITY CALLED

In the effort to socure indictments against owners of property in the 'red light" district, it was stated that matters appertaining to violations of laws in that district would be presented before the grand jury at its session this

In a letter addressed to district attorney Joseph M. Nealon, dated Sept 12. by the attorneys for H. C. Myles and others, who some time ago tried in the 41st district court for an order restraining certain owners of property on Broadway, from renting it for immoral purposes, attention of the district attorney is called to the alleged selling of liquor in disorderly houses in the reservation.

We further submit," the letter reads, "that Pat Powers, known as the city fine collector, collects fines for the city, which are in the nature of a license, which are in the nature of a license, from women on Broadway, who are openly and notoriously violating the laws. The chief of police and Pete Candelario can testify as to these alleged fines, and can produce records showing the purposes for which said fines or licenses are paid. The city clerk can also procure records along the same lines. Members of the police force can testify as to the names of those who have been paying taxes.

It is stated in the letter that certified copies of deeds are on file in the district clerk's office in cases Nos. 2506, and 2504 on the docket of the 41st judicial district court showing that judicial district court showing that Lamar Davis, W. H. Fenchler and George Huffman were the owners of ruling of the court, announced that he would furnish the bond.

With the opening of the local political contest in the district court comes the news linat the decision of the court may not end the contest. While no further legal recourse can be taken by the "antis," it is their declared intention to continue the fight at the November election.

In the event that judge Douglas should refuse to permit the opening of the poil boxes, some of the antis will run as independent candidates at the November election. Their names would have to be written on the ballots and with the great number of litterate voters in the city and county, the contestants cannot hope to win over "the ring" candidates in such a fight, but they want to make the other fellows spend some more money, it is said.

This action is said merely to form the prelude to the fight which the "antis" intend to make in the spring and declarations are being made that J. M. Goggin will be the mayoralty candidate on their side while they have information that efforts are being made by "the ring" to induce D. Storms, of Stormsville-on-the-mesa, to oppose him in the race.

However, within the inner circles of ring politics, it is declared that Walter S. Clayton is to be the candidate and that no great opposition is anticipated.

READY FOR ANY SUDDEN TROUBLE

"The Fifteenth of September," the Fourth of July" of Mexico when Hidalgo the Mexican Washington, raised his cry against the Spanish invader 102 years ago, is being celebrated in all parts of the republic to the south. Beginning at 11 oclock on the night of the 15th, at which hour historians say Hidalgo, the curate, raised his battle cry before a congregation in his little church in the village of Dolores, the celebration continues through the night and during the 16. At the stroke of eleven Sunday night in Juarez, bells from the old mission of Guadalupe chimed out a lively tattoo, cannon boomed from the old federal garrison to the southwest of the Mexican border town, and glasses were raised in Juarez restaurants and toasts drunk to the patriot-priest. The streets of Juarez were crowded, not only with townsepople, but with hundreds of Mexicans from El Paso who joined in celebration of the Mexican national independence. Crowds marched after companies of infantry parading the streets and bugies and drums pounded the lively marching airs.
